

KEITH DURANTY HELPER/DECOY CV

Prior to certifying as a KUSA IGP helper in 2015, I performed helper/decoy work at several other Clubs/Organisations.

Some of this experience has been typical sleeve work as is usually seen in protection sports such as IGP while other experience has been suit work for both personal protection/deployment dogs as well as dog sport.

I spent time in the United States during 2015 at Tarheel Canine working with the trainers, instructors and students there that were doing various courses including PSA (Protection Sport Association), tactical building searches and scent detection. I also attended some of the lectures that were provided to law enforcement agencies at the time of my visit.

During September 2019, I visited the Netherlands and spent time at De Berakkers Police Dog Centre, working with the team there where they train dogs for police / military / deployment work as well as KNPV. I had the privilege of working with some of these dogs in the bite work too.

During my visit, I also visited IGP Clubs in the area and was granted permission by one of these clubs (Hondenschool 't Peelhofke in Ospel) to work their dogs in IGP.

I have attended several other seminars, workshops and camps in which sleeve work, suit work, scent detection, tracking and or obedience were presented by various presenters from across the globe. There have also been several seminars that I've attended that were presented by local presenters (South African) in several fields of dog training which also includes sleeve and suit work. These most significant of the seminars presented by international guests are listed below: (dates need confirmation).

I have been training primarily in IGP and have participated in several trials in South Africa. I have also trained six helpers in IGP who have gone on to certify themselves. Several persons have been trained by myself in sleeve and suit protection work but these have mostly been in civil protection since there has not been any suit/ring type dog sports in South Africa until recently.
